Why 'Made in Britain' is vital to Craven's

We've been manufacturing our products here in Yorkshire for nearly 60 years and when we first started in business, British engineering was the envy of the world and the words 'Made in Britain' really meant something

Over the last two decades it would have been very easy to go down the same route as our competitors and rely on cheaper imports from around the world and more specifically Asia. However, we are extremely proud to be British manufacturers and believe that it is vital to support the UK economy and continue to fly the flag that 'Made in Britain' is a mark of great quality and success.

Manufacturing at our home in Yorkshire not only means we are always ahead on quality, but also enables us to be more responsive to tight deadlines and offer bespoke solutions that just can't be matched by our competitors who use foreign imports.

We also take great pride in continuing to investment within the business, both in terms of technology and our people which has helped to make sure we will no longer be beaten on price and the term 'Made in Britain' no longer just means great quality, it also is the sign of great value too!

That's why 'Made in Britain' will always remain at the heart of our business.
